Program Description:

This virtual panel discussion features Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI) advocates who are actively working to create positive change for diverse communities in New Jersey. The panelists are leaders in justice-centered organizations, and will discuss civil rights issues and inequities that affect vulnerable and marginalized populations. They are bridge builders who prioritize community empowerment and promote impactful and transformative policies and practices. Like the New Jersey Division on Civil Rights, these changemakers aim to combat bias, discrimination, and harassment by fostering meaningful dialogues and effective public-private partnerships.
